MESSAGE FROM THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION AND YOUTH

The foundation for a successful and balanced society includes appreciation for the rules that govern the relations we have with fellow citizens and our government. These rules set out the framework not just for our daily lives but also for the future of generations to come. If we cannot appreciate our roots and structure, Jamaica will lose her strength. The inclusion of Civics Education in the National Standards Curriculum is critical to this process.

Civics Education is the study of the theoretical, political and practical aspects of citizenship, as well as its rights and duties. Knowledge of the fundamentals of the subject empowers us to be well-informed, active citizens and gives us the opportunity to change the world around us. It is a vital part of any democracy, and will equip our citizens with familiarity of our democracy and constitution. National awareness is an important part of a child's development, and the teaching of Civics must again occupy its rightful pride of place in our schools. It is imperative that we teach our students about their history – where they are coming from and where they intend to go.

This government's education objectives have transcended standardized test results. We want students who are conscious of themselves, who know their place of dignity, of worth, who understand their rights and their obligations as citizens of Jamaica. We want to build students' education and awareness of the ways in which citizens can actively participate in Jamaica's diverse and inclusive society.

The main aim of incorporating Civics education in the national curriculum is to develop and transform our young people into effective, responsible, good and informed people (those who know what happens within and outside the government) who are useful to their country. The goal is "to comprehend the pride and the dignity and the seriousness" of being Jamaican. Let us work towards building and conquering new frontiers in education. Jamaica's prosperity depends on synergies. No country can achieve growth without a well-educated and skilled population.

In teaching Civics, our educators would have to stress the importance of equality while working towards the common goal of living a socially harmonious life in Jamaica land we love. Civics education as a positive force, will equip citizens with the requisite knowledge about social responsibility and rights. It is what is done with this special knowledge that will truly establish the benefits of Civics education.

The Honourable Fayval Williams, MP
Minister of Education and Youth

MESSAGE FROM THE PERMANENT SECRETARY

Civics Education has never been more critical to the education of our nation's young people. The introduction of this ground breaking national Civics Curriculum is both a response to this need, and a means by which the Ministry of Education and Youth is seeking to advance its agenda of foregrounding character development in school-aged children. With its focus on facilitating greater harmony; respect and care for self, others (in particular the vulnerable members of our society) and the environment, it is anticipated that overtime, this curriculum will have significant impact not only on how we perceive ourselves as Jamaican people, but how we live and operate as citizens.

The scope of the Civics Curriculum goes well beyond the traditional approach to Civics Education employed years ago. A deliberate effort has been made in the design of this Curriculum to align the targeted Civics competencies to the changing imperatives of Civics education in the 21st century. It reflects a radical shift from content-centred learning to more skills-based, attitudinal/ value-centered learning. The curriculum is underpinned by the best of Jamaican cultural forms and makes clear connections with community service and co-curricular programmes. It also makes references to the notable achievements of Jamaican icons in multiple disciplines. Ultimately, I believe we have a product that is vibrant, relevant, and in sync with our current societal needs.

The Civics Curriculum will be implemented in the context of a larger Culture in Education Programme which is not confined to the classroom. Its national outreach is designed to engage all Jamaicans in the process of creating the kind of society in which we desire to live, and exemplifying the values and attitudes that will provide stable, meaningful experiences for our people. This approach will make implementation at the class level more relevant, while facilitating experiences that lead to a positive view of self as a Jamaican, and the emergence of Jamaicans who are equipped to contribute to nation-building and to global development.

Congratulations to all those who have contributed to making this Civics Curriculum a reality. I look forward to its successful and meaningful implementation.

Mrs Maureen Dwyer, BH (M), JP
Permanent Secretary (Acting)
Ministry of Education and Youth

MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF EDUCATION OFFICER

Education is the means by which any society can re-create itself in future generations. Cognizant of this fact, Ministry of Education and Youth (MoEY) has positioned the National Standards Curriculum (NSC) as an important avenue through which the identity of future generations can be positively impacted. Given its very vibrant and broad-based nature, the NSC targets the holistic development of learners with a view to developing successful lifelong learners and confident and productive individuals who are deeply rooted in their culture, identity and citizenship.

In preparing the education system for the implementation of the NSC the MoEY continues to offer ongoing training/coaching support for all the relevant stakeholders involved in the implementation, including school administrators, teachers, parents and students. We are also committed to provisioning the system with the resources needed to ensure a successful implementation, particularly in the context of the inclusive and differentiated approaches endorsed by the NSC. We will continue to work with our partners in ensuring the resources available to schools are fully aligned to the content and philosophical underpinnings of the NSC. This is an exciting time for education in Jamaica.

As we advance the curriculum implementation process, we aim to provide all our learners with access to the best education possible. However, we recognize that meaningful and sustainable progress can only be realized from the collaborative effort of all our stakeholders. So as we forge ahead with implementation we invite all our stakeholders to keep focused on our shared vision: “Every Child Can Learn; Every Child Must Learn”.

Capt. Kasan Troupe, Ed.D, JP
Chief Education Officer (Acting),
Ministry of Education and Youth

MESSAGE FROM THE DEPUTY CHIEF EDUCATION OFFICER

The National Standards Curriculum (NSC) rests on the belief that all learners are endowed with the capabilities, gifts and talents to fulfil their divine purpose. These attributes are to be further enhanced or improved in a nurturing, inspiring and inclusive environment; one that caters to the whole person (soul, spirit and body - spiritual, emotional, social, physical and mental). As learners assume their roles and responsibilities individually and as communities of learning in such an environment, they become critical-reflexive thinkers, creative problem solvers, effective communicators and natural collaborators.

A curriculum design of this nature, calls for transformative change at the societal level (Elkind, 2004)¹ and not just at the school and classroom levels. This is a call for all stakeholders, as users of the curriculum, to adopt a critical-reflective and reflexive stance and join learners in the quest for meaning, purpose and stability as they help to shape the world. By integrating principles from various disciplines and their related methodologies, learners who interact with the curriculum are provided with enriching experiences, opportunities for creative expressions and authentic exploration of problems from a classical standpoint as well as in the context of workplace learning. This is due to the fact that the NSC recognizes the importance of each discipline in the problem-solving process and in development.

Assessment as an element of the curriculum becomes primarily a learning process for charting progress through self-corrective measures that are informed by feedback from peers and teacher-facilitator. By providing assessment criteria statements in the curriculum, teachers are encouraged to facilitate learners functioning as self and peer assessors. This approach should see the learner developing self-direction with the support of mentors and coaches and forming an intrinsic desire to succeed. These attributes prepare them to face high stakes assessment as problems to be confronted with courage, a sense of readiness, insight and creative prowess.

These features of the NSC have the potential to influence learners' profile as Jamaicans who are gratified by an identity of cultural excellence that embodies moral obligations, intellectual rigour, innovativeness, environmental stewardship and productivity. The curriculum echoes the sentiments of our National Anthem, National Song and Pledge and serves as a rich and credible source of the values and virtues that are woven together to convey the Jamaican identity. I wish for our school administrators, teachers, students and other stakeholders much success as they work with the document.

Dr Clover Hamilton Flowers
Deputy Chief Education Officer (Acting),
Curriculum and Support Services,
Ministry of Education and Youth

MESSAGE FROM THE ASSISTANT CHIEF EDUCATION OFFICER

The Ministry of Education through its Core Curriculum Unit remains committed to providing the school system with curriculum documents which are relevant, broadly based and which promote the holistic development of all students. The introduction of the Civics Curriculum is a big step in advancing this agenda on clearly identified values and attitudes which should ultimately become embedded in our Jamaican citizenry.

The Civics Curriculum was developed around a diverse, yet culturally relevant set of content standards designed to enable all students at the Grades 4-9 levels to acquire and transfer the essential civics competencies necessary to function in today's global society. The learning is further expanded by students making connections to other transferable skills such as communication, collaboration, critical thinking and creativity; skills and attributes deemed critical for students to successfully assume their core life roles.

The Curriculum utilizes the Interdisciplinary approach which facilitates the integration of aspects of the Jamaican culture that promote well-being, and allows for connections to be made across disciplines. Through use of the JamWay Methodology, students will be engaged in high interest, standards-based, real-world experiences that promote holistic learning as they explore the following themes:

- Cultural Identity and Heritage
- Cultural Symbols, Rituals and Celebrations

- Human Rights, Civic Responsibilities and Cultural and National Stewardship

It is anticipated that teachers will maximise their use of these Curriculum Guides to develop exciting and stimulating lessons to promote the development of students' knowledge, attitudes, values and skills as part of the wider school curriculum.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

TERMS	DEFINITIONS
About the Unit	Gives a brief overview of the content, skills that are covered in the unit and the methodologies that are used, as well as the attitudes to be developed.
Standards	Statements that explain what all students are expected to know, understand and be able to do in different content areas by the end of a course of study e.g. by the end of the period spanning grades 4 – 9.
Attainment Targets	An attainment target is a desired or expected level of performance at the end of a course of work, within a given/specified teaching-learning period. Attainment targets identify the knowledge, skills and understanding which students of different abilities and maturities are expected to have by the end of each Grade. It is the standard that we expect the majority of children to achieve by the end of the grade.
Learning Objectives	Learning objectives state what the student is expected to know, understand or be able to do as a result of the learning experience. The learning objective is usually framed in the areas of the knowledge, skills and attitudes that the students are expected to achieve. Learning objectives tell us what the children will learn or will be taught.
Suggested Teaching/Learning Activities	A teaching/learning activity is an organised doing of things towards achieving the stated objectives. They are suggested activities that are crafted in a way to be an efficient vehicle which can move the student between what is to be learnt (objective) and what the student is to become (outcome).

They are aligned to the suggested teaching and learning activities in the unit which are intended to develop the skill to which it is aligned. Included in the key skills are the 21 st Century skills such as critical thinking and problem solving, collaboration, communication and ICT.

PHILOSOPHICAL STATEMENT

The Civics Curriculum is intended to meet the wholistic developmental needs of learners while it inspires teachers, parents and leaders to be the kind of citizens that preserve all that is valuable about Jamaica's culture and heritage. Civics Education helps to foster students' understanding of themselves as unique beings, each valued, valuable and indispensable to the development of Jamaica. The programme therefore focuses on the development of attributes of nationalism and patriotism, for a better understanding and appreciation of what it means to be Jamaican.

Civics Education is important, not only to educate students about the structure and functions of government, the significance of national symbols and emblems, their rights, responsibilities and duties as citizens, but is also about the importance of virtues such as tolerance, fairness, care and concern for others. The programme promotes a culture of respect and encourages students to see themselves as integral to the success of their school, their community and country. Through the nurturing of gifts and talents and the facilitation of a fun-based yet reflexive learning environment, it is expected that learners will adopt the values and virtues that are deemed "good citizenship."

Given that citizenship is developed, understood and applied within a specific cultural context, Civic Education must be transformational. To this end, Civics in the NSC seeks to:

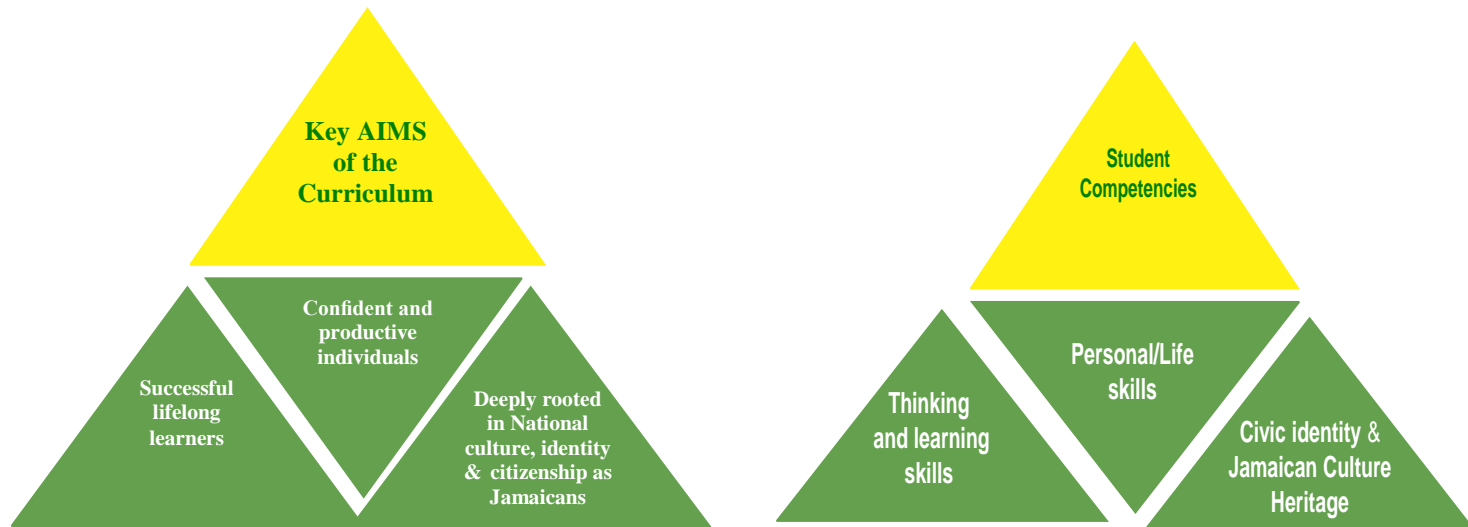

- a. Resonate with the personal empowerment needs of our young people. Through an inclusive approach to education, learners will be able to critically and creatively think about their experiences that are shaping their identity and the perspective(s) they have of Jamaica. They will also be able to make decisions about how they are contributing to Jamaica's profile locally and globally, how they can help to preserve all that is favourable and enable national development.
- b. Fulfil the imperatives of Civics Education in the 21st century in general, and in particular the agenda of a nation on a mission to promote the principles, processes and values that are essential for the preservation, improvement and sustainability of our society.

Learning opportunities are provided for students to assume core life roles and transfer competencies acquired from the experiences derived from various disciplines as they solve problems and contribute to the aesthetics of learning and living with others. The Civics Curriculum utilizes an interdisciplinary approach that facilitates the understanding and appreciation of complex problems/issues or situations. This approach highlights the relevance and applicability of Civics Education in relation to other disciplines/subject areas, as students are given the opportunity to make connections with real world. Experiential learning is extended to practical application of principles through community service and volunteerism. In all contexts, values and virtues are regarded as boundaries for their practice as developing leaders and responsible learners.

THE KEY AIMS OF THE NATIONAL STANDARDS CURRICULUM

There are three key aims that underpin all learning in the curriculum and provide its purpose and direction.

AIMS OF THE CIVICS EDUCATION PROGRAMME

The aim of the Civics programme is to contribute to young Jamaicans understanding of themselves as individuals and members of groups endowed with God-given abilities, gifts and/or talents that are indispensable to national development. As Jamaicans, they should participate in the achievement of the National Vision for Jamaica as a “place of choice to live, work, raise families, and do business” (Vision 2030)². In the face of diverse hardships as well as great success, they should acknowledge spiritual virtues. Due to their special purpose, and as part of Jamaica’s heritage, they should develop the attributes that will make them desirable citizens.

CORE VALUES OF THE NATIONAL STANDARDS CURRICULUM

The main task of Civic Education is to foster the development of informed, effective, and responsible citizenry. Like the other subject areas of the NSC the Civics Curriculum fosters the development of values and skills that support the w/holistic development of young people. This curriculum promotes the development 21st Century Skills that will help young people effectively navigate a world that is in a constant state of economic, technological and social change. The acquisition of these values and skills will help to ensure that young people are well prepared for the challenges and opportunities they are encountering and will encounter as they journey into adulthood. They will be positioned as global citizens ready to work in jobs that have not yet been created, technologies that have not yet been developed and new challenges that have never been encountered.

² 2010 Planning Institute of Jamaica Vision 2030 Jamaica, National Development Plan

Core Values of the National Standards Curriculum

The Core Values of the NSC are further strengthened in this curriculum by highlighting the importance of Core Life Roles.

Three (3) Core Life Roles are emphasized in the curriculum

- Study & Work
- Significant Relationships

Recreation & Community Service/Activities/Contribution

The responsibilities associated with these roles are explored through the various themes and learning activities within the context of family, community, school and workplace. These contexts are experiences directly or through simulations as connection is made to other learning areas such as Resource and Technology through various projects, including STEM/STEAM related ones.

Exploring Major Core Life Roles

Exploration of Core Life Roles should inspire young people to achieve academic goals, acquire social and emotional wellbeing and make the effort to satisfy their career/occupational interests, while being mindful of the factors that enhance or hinder their progress. The world of work is dynamic, ever changing, and filled with many opportunities; but most young people struggle to navigate their way through a career path that is fulfilling. Exploration of Core Life Roles is about helping them in the here-and-now, to develop a healthy sense of self and the competencies that will empower them to reach their full potential.

ATTAINMENT TARGETS AND STANDARDS FOR CIVICS

There are three (3) key Attainment Targets (AT) within Civics, with a total of three (3) themes. The Attainment Targets and Standards are explained below.

In addition, students should demonstrate sustainable environmental practices that will ensure that the Jamaican way of life is preserved. They will demonstrate empathy, act appropriately and show resilience in times of crisis.

OVERVIEW OF THE CIVICS EDUCATION PROGRAMME

This programme is designed to provide experience and active learning opportunities that help our young people to grow confidently and think critically, in order to improve the nature of their interactions and to enhance their social and emotional competencies. Additionally, it is envisaged that our students will be able to manifest the confidence in themselves and their abilities; demonstrate certainty in their sense of belonging to and caring for Jamaica; believing in its future and their role in it as patriotic citizens who are empowered by the culture of excellence their nation exemplifies.

Understanding Civics

Placed in context, Civics is one aspect of Political Science. It is concerned with understanding how government works, the way political systems are structured, the relationship between these structures and the way they provide the context within which the rights and responsibilities of citizenship are understood.

Given that citizenship is developed, understood and applied within a specific cultural context, Ministry of Education and Youth is embarking on a programme of Civic Education that is transformational in three critical aspects:

- Firstly, it is not bound by a dictionary definition. Rather, it is a concept defined within the context of the personal empowerment needs of Jamaicans, particularly the youth at this time.
- Secondly, there is the examination of how the traditional definition of Civics needs to be adjusted to accord with the changing imperatives of Civic Education in the twenty-first century in general and, in particular, with the agenda of a country on a mission, following political independence in 1962.

- Thirdly, consideration is given to historical applications of the concept of citizenship that were exclusionary, such as the right to vote being linked to ownership of property, the acceptance or rejection of dual citizenship and the protection of the human rights of all citizens.

The new thrust of the Ministry of Education and Youth will therefore see the Civics programme as process education that facilitates how we become, live and operate as citizens. It focuses on the process by which we come to an understanding of ourselves, as human beings, as a collective occupying a given geographical space, and of the need to include everyone in an appreciation of certain core values. This will facilitate greater harmony, care and respect for each other, the land that we are blessed to occupy, and the institutions that protect collective welfare.

An important component of this programme is how we understand our rights, how we exercise those rights, and how we are motivated to take responsibility for everything that happens around us, through us and because of us.

The programme is not confined to the classroom. Its national outreach is designed to embrace all Jamaicans in the process of creating the kind of society and exemplifying the values that will provide the daily experiences for our young people. This approach will make the classroom component meaningful and relevant, facilitate experiences that lead to a positive view of self as a Jamaican, and motivate the youth to want to contribute to nation-building.

THE PRINCIPLES OF THE PROGRAMME

The Programme must:

- Be firmly established and facilitated in the context of the Jamaican culture and heritage that promote well-being.
- Be participatory – that is, facilitate the contribution of each student to the achievement of the learning outcomes.
- Be experiential – that is, value the experience that the student brings to the class and use that experience as the transitioning blocks for new information and the springboard for reflection.
- Engage students as co-creators of their education, providing opportunities for students to be engaged in activities through which they may experience and apply the knowledge, skills and attitudes learnt.
- Reflect the principle of equity - that is, all students should be able to access and participate in all the activities of the programme using their unique skills, talents and interests as they assume core life roles.
- Reflect an awareness of the gender-related concerns affecting students.
- Sensitize students to the role and functions of the UN Human Rights in their daily living.
- Reflect the ideals of democracy for all students.

NOTES TO THE TEACHER

The NSC Framework document outlines the rationale and philosophy of this new Civics programme at this time in our history. It will be useful as a reference guide for the ways in which this programme builds on the traditional understanding of Civics in scope, content and methodology.

The curriculum guide will help teacher shape and define what the student already knows and brings to the learning situation as experiences, mind- sets, and dispositions (cultural, emotional etc.). Teachers are invited to build on the foundation that it sets with their knowledge, experience and expertise.

Assessment criteria should include evidence of self-correction by students. It is recommended that teachers become familiar with the various sections including the appendices of the framework and teaching guides.

On-going reflection as practitioners is necessary so that teachers function as stewards of the kinds of disposition expected. Self-correction should be encouraged as a part of the reflective process.

STRUCTURE OF THE PROGRAMME

The Three Levels

There are three levels of the programme- Early Childhood, Primary and Secondary- each level corresponds to one level of the education system. The three levels are linked and reflect complexity of the concept of raising Jamaicans to regard themselves as possibility thinkers. Each level has its own theme song that summarises and reflects the main philosophy, skills and attitudes intended for that level. Transition from one level to the next is akin to rites of passage that prepare an individual for growing into a new phase of their humanity.

Level	Grades	Themes	Theme Songs
Early Childhood 2(Pre-primary)	Grades 1-3	Awakening Social Awareness	I am a Promise
Primary	Grades 4-6	Awakening Social Conscientiousness	You Can Get It (If You Really Want) – James “Jimmy Cliff” Chambers, OM.
Secondary	Grades 7-9 Grades 11-13	Awakening Social Responsibility	Book of Rules – The Heptones

OVERVIEW OF THE PROGRAMME CONTENT

Thematic Approach

The teaching and learning activities for each level are themed for each term. One set of themes, links into and supports the themes in the following term.

The themes are:

- Cultural Identity and Heritage
- Cultural Symbols, Rituals and Celebrations
- Human Rights, Civic Responsibilities and Cultural and National Stewardship

Each theme will be explored at the individual, community and national levels. The topics to be covered within the themes for each term are designed to culminate in, and support, a major national activity occurring in the life of the nation or the school during that term.

The activities of Term 1 will trend towards the celebration of National Heritage Week in October and support activities in November that focus on Parenting Month and Youth and Community Month. Other important events with a Special Education focus such as the Winter Olympics should also serve as contexts for learning.

In Term 2, the topics will be centred on the celebration of Jamaica Day and Reggae Month in February. Some topics and activities will be in support of the sporting events that happen in schools, and culminate in national sporting events such as the ISSA Boys and Girls Championships, JTA Primary School Championship, In-Sports Primary School Championship and Jamaica Independent School Championship.

In Term 3, the activities and topics will trend towards Child Month in May and will affirm the Rights of the Child within the context of the Rights and Responsibilities of the Jamaican citizen. Consideration should also be given to Special Olympics and Paralympics as contexts for the rights and responsibilities of citizens to be observed. The element of EXTENDED LEARNING may be appropriately used for the purpose of application and reflection on the practices of various stakeholder groups.

It is further intended that in every class and every activity, the teachers will highlight and provide authentic opportunities for the application of concepts of citizenship and nation building related to, and emanating from the topics in that theme. Concepts often overlap and more than one may emerge in any one lesson or activity, for example, respect, order and orderliness, teamwork and group cohesion.

Highlighting Philosophers such as National Hero, The Right Excellent Marcus Garvey

The placement of philosophers, such as National Hero, The Right Excellent Marcus Garvey, within the context of the new Civics programme is designed to help students to understand themselves in the story of how well-known philosophers rose from amongst the economically disadvantaged, the politically disenfranchised and racially marginalized, to impact brand Jamaica by joining the most noted philosophers influencing world leaders and the global artistic community. This is one way to establish the link between positive identity, academic excellence and productivity, which anchors students in their possibilities.

Therefore, for selected themes, a relevant quotation from a renowned philosopher is used and becomes part of the text for that theme. The quote is to be used in the development of the lessons and activities exploring that topic. In this context, the teachings of Garvey and other philosophers build on the approach of the Grades 7-9 Social Studies component of the NSC and supports the Citizenship and Culture in Education Programme.

Our other National Heroes are treated as well, in designated eras/epochs, based on the roles they played in their contribution to national development.

Using the Case Studies Approach

This new Civics programme incorporates the use of Case Studies, which investigate contemporary Jamaican phenomena. There are three (3) main types of Case Studies, namely: Exploratory, Explanatory and Descriptive. The Case Study approach allows students to gain factual information while facilitating independent learning and reflection.

Essential Elements of the Approach

- Civics lessons, though related to Social Studies, are neither duplications nor substitutions for Social Studies.
- Civics lessons must be taught in dedicated and designated time slots on the timetable for at least thirty (30) minutes each week for Early Childhood; up to forty-five (45) minutes weekly at Primary Schools; and at least one (1) hour each week at the Secondary level.
- Culturally relevant methodology, in which the creative and art forms function as drivers for the content, while providing experiences for students must be utilized. This emphasis has led to a description of an approach referred to as the 'JamWay' methodology. The 'JamWay' Methodology seeks to transfer the relationships - the environment, the attention, the enjoyment, the care and support from Summer School into the regular classroom. It also seeks to make the classroom an experience of wonderment, curiosity and enjoyment of learning.
- The themes and/or core values of the Citizenship and Culture in Education Programme must be subsumed and highlighted in relevant activities in the Civics lessons, and not taught as a separate subject.
- Selected themes must be driven by a relevant quote from well-known philosophers and persons who have had national and/or international influence, for example, Marcus Garvey, Bob Marley and King Solomon. Recommended quotes are included the Teaching Guides.
- National Emblems/Symbols that are included in a Unit, are to be given prominence using strategies that convey their significance and an understanding of their link to the themes, core values and core life roles.
- Each lesson must place emphasis on at least one specific core value and major life role in ways that are developmentally appropriate.
- The Civics Programme must be included in the School Improvement Plan as one of the means by which a positive school culture is to be created and sustained. This means that plans to improve the school should take into consideration the socio-cultural aspect of school life.

JAMWAY METHODOLOGY

The JAMWAY methodology is a culture-centred set of principles and teaching/ learning strategies, which puts at the forefront students' interests, skills, abilities and knowledge. It has its philosophical underpinnings in a combination of learner- centred theories/ principles drawn from various versions of Constructivism (Taylor, 2015 and Bruner, 1996), Socioculturalism (Vygotsky, 1978 & 1986) and the Theory of Aesthetic Learning Experiences (Uhrmacher, 2009).

The methodology is derived from an assessment of the following:

1. Findlayson and Diggiss (2006) Festival in the Workplace: “Festival in the Workplace (FITW) is a transformation process that stimulates people to become their most creative, productive and passionate selves. FITW is based on lessons from festivals and the arts and the process serves as a catalyst for the development of a new organizational culture that ignites the creative spirit and passion for personal and organizational excellence. In such a culture, people experience joy, meaning and fulfilment.
2. Uhrmacher (2009) Theory of Aesthetic Learning Experiences: The theory demonstrates how opportunities may be provided for students to have aesthetically engaged learning experiences. Uhrmacher (2009) draws on John Dewey's ideas from Art as Experience as a framework and posits six themes that teachers can utilize to help students attain engaged learning experiences. These include connections, active engagement and sensory experience. The benefits of providing aesthetic learning experiences include student satisfaction, an increase in perceptual knowledge, episodic memory retention, meaning making, and creativity and innovation.
3. Sounoglou & Michalopoulou (2017) - Student-centred and Inquiry-based Learning: Although the writers have not branded their approach in this way, their work is based upon it. Through this methodology, early learners (Pre-K to Grade 3) are encouraged to wonder at the world, to explore it, enjoy it and learn through play, negotiation, problem-solving and experimentation. Sounoglou & Michalopoulou (2017) note that through the interactions of young children with their peers, they will begin to learn citizenship through “concrete and practical acts that serve the everyday life of the school and the wider beyond the school.” (p. 56)

4. Data available in the MOEY relating to the vastly improved performance of Grade 4 students after their summer school experience.

The JAMWAY methodology aims to:

- Transfer the relationships, the environment, the attention, the enjoyment, the care and support from summer school into the learning environment/ classroom.
- Make the classroom an experience of wonderment, curiosity and enjoyment of learning.
- Honour the aesthetic cultural forms of music, storytelling, play, artistic expressions etc., as the centrepiece of the methodology.
- Promote inclusion of the wealth of information and knowledge in the lived experiences of our senior citizens in the community especially those who function as guardian and caregivers of our students.
- Encourage both the teacher and students to enrich the learning environment by having the confidence to infuse it with that which excites their interest and utilizes their talents outside of the classroom.
- Promote an interdisciplinary approach to learning and teaching through STEAM and other integrative teaching strategies in an inclusive manner.

In short, the JamWay methodology is a practical demonstration of a curriculum that is driven by the arts and a manifestation of culture being the context, content and methodology for teaching and learning. Additionally, the JamWay methodology incorporates teaching/learning strategies which are intermittently used as remedial strategies. In this context, these are validated and proposed as core strategies.

The methodology also employs:

1. Process-based learning - It focuses on the “why” and “how” of what fuels curiosity and fosters research skills and the internalization of values through action
2. Collaborative and Co-operative learning - It supports learning with others as a community or team. By sharing common values, intellectual abilities and the purpose for working together, the development of teamwork and critical thinking skills are fostered. They will also learn how to negotiate and operate according to established structures and rules/ regulations.
3. Reflective and Reflexive Thinking - It allows for the engagement of students in introspective activities to examine their approach to problems and their beliefs and behaviours based on core values or expected code of conduct/engagement. This is to sustain appropriate practices and to provide support for changing unacceptable ones.
4. A whole- school approach - It requires everyone to play a role in the development of the whole child whenever and wherever they encounter the child (at or away from the physical school context).
5. Experiential learning - It seeks to ensure internalization of the competencies that nurture the spirit and become the foundation for life-long learning
6. Highly participatory- Students are encouraged to question issues, values and content, building knowledge and understanding in a truly constructivist way.
7. STEM/STEAM Integration: The principles of the scientific method integrated with those of Mathematics, Engineering Design and Technology are used to develop innovative behaviours and 21st Century skills (problem solving, critical thinking, collaboration and communication). The Art forms are relied on so that learners can make use of a wide array of modalities to interpret problems, represent and communicate their ideas and experiences and select solutions that they will explore.

The methodology incorporates several other interactive teaching and learning approaches/strategies, these include but are not limited to:

- Storytelling
- Music
- Games
- Finger Play
- Riddles
- Movie Making
- Field Trips (physical/virtual)

In any one class, you may use any combination of the strategies outlined. You may find, however, that your students have a preference for that one strategy that provides the rhythm and anticipation that are good foundations of sustaining interest and guaranteeing learning. For example, your classes could be designed around the idea of a radio talk show, television game show, a fashion show, a sing-off or storytelling moments, centred around the given themes, panel discussions, presentations by senior citizens on your community. The possibilities are endless, provided that the objective of making learning enjoyable is met. This means that our classes are conducted in such a way that: “We move beyond a mere intellectual understanding of the subject matter into a realm of spiritual and emotional appreciation so that the satisfaction of the learning experience is long-lasting because of its impact on the sub-conscious.” (Salmon, 2017)

Throughout the year, and certainly by the end of each level, the students should be “Jamming”; their learning environment would have been infused with that which excites their interest and utilizes their talent. These include:

- ‘Jamaicanness’ - personal heritage and cultural context
- Awareness of cultural rituals, systems, processes, human rights and civic responsibilities
- Meaning of Civic Awareness
- Understanding of society

- Value Manifestations - behaviours and attitudes
- Interactions - citizenship and sense of community
- Patriotism and nationalism in relation to cultural heritage of Jamaica
- Philosophical context - Garvey and others

These will serve to equip the student with a solid foundation for inquiry and progress towards defining their own paths in today's Jamaica.

ABOUT THE UNIT

In this Unit, students will develop an understanding of how new situations impact the perception of self, and the capacity to maintain personal integrity while contributing positively to a new, larger group. This Unit is less about teaching students about the history of Free Villages in Jamaica, and more about looking at how the former enslaved Africans, the peasants, established and maintained their identity in the face of challenges, and within the changing social and economic context of the post-emancipation era.

THEME: Cultural Identity and Heritage

CORE VALUES: Self-reliance, hard work, resilience, resourcefulness, interdependence.

THE NATIONAL SYMBOLS: The National Pledge

QUOTE: "Action, self-reliance, the vision of self and the future have been the only means by which the oppressed have seen and realized the light of their own freedom." Rt. Excellent Marcus Garvey.

POSSIBLE INTERPRETATION: Regardless of ones' circumstances, one can achieve self-actualization through "taking action".

SONGS: "I Can" by Chronixx,

GRADE 8, TERM 2 UNIT 1

ABOUT THE UNIT

This unit is about using community road signs as a metaphor for life's journey. We examine how community names indicate the importance of being identified by a name, as well as the effects of aliases/pet-names on individuals and communities. The unit also lends itself to the exploration of other symbols that are unique to specific communities, such as the community mural, "railway signs" and "farm animals' crossings", and how they speak to who we are as individuals.

The rationale for using these as metaphors is to educate students about their community and other communities in Jamaica, but more emphatically, to indicate that as we journey through life, we will encounter signs to guide us; where we go and how we get there, nonetheless, depends on how we react to the signs we encounter.

THEME: Cultural Symbols, Civic Rituals and Celebrations

CORE VALUES: Obedience, being dutiful, law-abiding, respectful, resilience, dedication, helpfulness, caring.

THE NATIONAL SYMBOLS: Flag,

QUOTE: "Life is one big road with lots of signs, so when you riding through the ruts don't complicate your mind".
Bob Marley.

POSSIBLE INTERPRETATION: Life is complicated and may sometimes be confusing but do not be preoccupied with the difficult moments.

SONG: "Life is a Road with So Many Signs" by Antonio

Prior Learning

Check that students:

- Have knowledge of logos and slogans.
- Know the name of their community.
- Know what is a community mural
- Understand and use simple metaphors integrity

Discuss what a mural is, note if their community/ school has one and say what is the message conveyed. In groups design an inspiring mural for their class/ school/ community. Share the finished product and explain to class the desired impact of the mural. • Play the “Place of Fortune Then and Now Game” (played like spin the Wheel of Fortune). Teacher will write the names of places whose image in society has changed over time. As students spin the wheel, they will be asked to talk about the present image of the community on which the arrow lands. Students will be encouraged to talk about the past of the community, if they are able to do so. (Suggest communities that have changed significantly over the years). Have discussion about what has caused the change in perception about the communities. For example “35 rare photos of Jamaica before 1900”. • Using the examples of well- known communities, role-play situations showing decisions/actions that cause our names to attract stigmas. - Make a table in which they analyse literally or metaphorically how the symbols of some essential services in their community connect with their own lives. The table should have four columns with the headings: Essential Service, Picture or Drawing of Symbol, Description of Symbol, How I react to symbol and How Symbol Connects to my Life, for example, the Jamaica Constabulary Force (JCF) has a symbol that has a crown, a crocodile sitting on top of a cross and five golden pineapples. The police are people we should respect and obey. Police officers are not our enemies, therefore, we should work with them to serve and protect the people of our island. The JCF symbol could represent that we need to be law-abiding, dutiful, obedient, protectors and servers to each other.

The link between collaboration and community should be made. • While analysing the symbols of other essential services in the community, core values must be emphasized. For example, if talking about the Hospital, the symbol 'H' could mean that we must be helpful, hospitable, hard-working, caring. • The unit is one that can spark heated discussions because the content is very close to home. Ensure that students respect each other's opinions as they talk about their communities and also themselves. As best as possible, steer discussions away from persons revealing intimate details about themselves, community and others. 	Design a 3D model of a community that indicates your journey through life. Baseterre Treaty and the Regional Treaty on Security Assistance, prior to teaching the unit. • Teacher must underscore that when we talk about group cohesion and working together as a collective unit, we are examining positive groups that collaborate for the good of all. Organized criminal gang activities should be strongly discouraged. Students may want to highlight that these gangs are highly organized, but teacher, in a sensitive way, should steer discussion to positive groups and also to the classroom setting. GRADE 8, TERM 3 UNIT 2

ABOUT THE UNIT

This Unit uses common environmental problems faced by countries in the Caribbean as the Case Study. Through this, students examine how their right intentions, but wrong doings speak volumes about our character and our integrity as a people. Students will explore the role of some environmental protection agencies in the Caribbean, and also ways in which each of us can help to protect the environment and natural resources of the region. It is expected that as students interface with the unit, they will develop integrity, moral consciousness, regional and national pride and a sense of responsibility.

THEME: Human Rights, Civic Responsibilities and Cultural and National Stewardship.

CORE VALUES: empathy, regional pride, orderliness, discipline, equality, fairness, punctuality, unity, harmony, honesty, integrity, moral consciousness, regional and national pride and a sense of responsibility.

THE NATIONAL SYMBOL:

QUOTE: “Don’t be misled, bad company corrupts good character” 1 Corinthians 15 V 33 (NIV)

POSSIBLE INTERPRETATION: If you allow yourself to be influenced by people who practice immorality, you will eventually loosen your own moral convictions. Be careful of your associations.

SONG: The teacher may choose an appropriate song aligned to the Unit.

Prior Learning

Check that students can:

- Differentiate right from wrong.
- Identify environmental issues.

Points to Note	Extended Learning
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Jamaican proverb “Sweet mouth’ fly follow coffin go a hole”, can be interpreted to mean that someone who is looking to satisfy himself/herself, does not usually see the danger ahead. In the context of this unit, it is understood that to get food is the good intention of the fly, nonetheless, the action of going into a hole with the coffin to suffocate and die is a wrong action. Students should therefore be encouraged to explore ways and means that offer positive results to execute their intentions. • Teacher must be cognizant of the fact that students may extend the discussion to look at various individuals in the society such as area dons, who very often through unscrupulous means, support their communities and also practice jungle justice. The matter is very sensitive and teachers who are not familiar with the operations of the community, should not venture into lengthy discussions with students. Explain to students that while these things are happening in our society, the emphasis of the unit is on the classroom setting and the decisions that they make as students. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research on Goal # 4 of Vision 2030, Jamaica’s National Development Plan. • Using audio and visual aids, along with the performing arts, conduct a public education campaign in their school so that everyone can contribute to actualizing the goal of making Jamaica a safe and healthy place to live, work, raise families and conduct business. • Maintain a soft and/or hard copy journal of their experiences hosting the public education campaign. • Simulate court scenes using basic information about justice system and ways of upholding the law. • Collect positive quotes on spiritual virtues that are appealing and inspiring. • Organize a discussion with members of faith-based groups/communities on their contribution to the Jamaican culture and how they can be more impactful.

APPENDICES

THE 5E MODEL

What is a 5E Learning Cycle?

This model describes an approach for facilitating learning that can be used for entire programmes, specific units and individual lessons. The NSC supports the 5E constructivist learning cycle, as it places emphasis on the processes that may be used to help students to be personally involved in the learning situation as they are guided to build their own understandings from experiences and new ideas.

The Instructional Model

What are the 5Es?

The 5Es represent five key interrelated processes that provide the kind of learning experiences for learners to experience the curriculum or planned learning episodes: Engage, Explore, Explain, Extend (or Elaborate), and Evaluate.

ENGAGE: The purpose of the ENGAGEMENT dimension is to help students to be ready intellectually, socially, emotionally etc. for the session. Attention is given to the students' interests and to getting them personally involved in the lesson, while pre-assessing prior understandings, attitudes and/or skills. During the experience, students first encounter and identify the instructional task and their roles and responsibilities. During the ENGAGEMENT activity, students make connections between past and present learning experiences, setting the organizational groundwork for upcoming activities. The engagement activity may be used to (a) help student unearth prior knowledge (b) arouse their curiosity (c) encourage students to ask questions as a sign that they have wonderments or are puzzled.

EXPLORE: The purpose of the EXPLORATION dimension is to get students involved in solving a real problem that is based on a selected context. EXPLORATION provides them with a chance to build their own understanding of the phenomenon being investigated and the attitude and skills involved for arriving at a workable solution. In exploring the students have the opportunity to get directly involved with the phenomenon and materials. As they work together in learning teams or independently, the need to share and communicate becomes necessary from the experiences. The teacher functions as a facilitator, providing materials, guarding against obstacles to learning and guiding the students to operate based on agreements. The students become inquirers and co-owners of the learning process. In exploring, they also ask questions, formulate hypothesis, search for answers or information/data, reflect with others, test their own predictions and draw conclusions.

EXPLAIN: The purpose of the EXPLANATORY dimension is to provide students with an opportunity to assess their thinking and to use intellectual standards as critical thinkers to communicate their perspectives and/or the meaning of the experiences. They rely on communication tools and their skills as Language users to: (a) organize their thoughts so that they are clear, relevant, significant, fair, accurate etc. (b) validate or affirm others (c) self-motivate. Reflection also occurs during the process and may cause students to adjust their perspective or justify their claims and summarise the lessons being learned. Providing explanations contributes to vocabulary building and self-corrective actions to deal with misconceptions that they become aware of from feedback of their peers and/or their facilitator.

EXTEND: The purpose of this dimension is to allow students to use their new knowledge and continue to explore its significance and implications. Students work independently or with others to expand on the concepts and principles they have learned, make connections to other related concepts and principles within and/or across disciplines, and apply their understandings in new ways to unfamiliar situations.

EVALUATE: The purpose of the EVALUATION dimension is for both students and facilitator to determine progress being made or the extent to which learning has taken place based on the stated objectives or emergent objectives. EVALUATION is treated primarily as an on-going diagnostic and developmental process that allows the learner to become aware of gaps to be treated and progress made from their efforts to acquire the competencies that were the focus of the session. Examples of competencies include understanding of concepts, principles and processes and demonstrating various skills. Evaluation and assessment can occur at different points during the learning episode. Some of the tools that assist in this diagnostic and formative process include rubrics, teacher observation log, self-inventories, peer critique, student interviews, reflective presentations, displays/expositions, portfolios, performances, project and problem-based learning products. Analysis of reflections, video recordings are useful in helping students to determine the depth of their thinking and understanding and the objectives they have or have not achieved.

Who developed the 5E model?

In 1987, the Biological Science Curriculum Study (BSCS), a team led by Principal Investigator Roger Bybee, developed the instructional model for constructivism, called the "Five Es".

The Link between the 5E model and Types of Learning Activities

The five (5) types of Learning Activities purported by Yelon (1996) can be integrated with the 5E's so as to enrich the teaching and learning process. He noted that every instructional plan should include the following learning activities

1. Motivation Activities: Intended to help learners to be ready for the session
2. Orientation Activities: Inform students of their roles and responsibilities based the purpose or objectives of a learning episode.
3. Information Activities: Allow students to manipulate current knowledge, access/retrieve and generate new ideas
4. Application Activities: Allow for the use of knowledge and skills in novel situations
5. Evaluation Activities: Allow for reflection, corrective actions and sourcing of evidence to confirm/refute claims about learning.
- 6.

These activities can be planned to serve one of the purposes of each dimension of the 5E model. For example, ENGAGEMENT may be comprised a Motivation Activity and an Orientation Activity. EXPLORATION and EXPLANATION require an Information Activity, while EXTEND requires an Application Activity. EVALUATION requires the kind of activity that will contribute to the collection of data for assessing and arriving at a conclusion about performance based on stated or expected purpose for which learning is being facilitated.
